WELCOME TO FENWAY PARK

50 Years of Yawkey Tradition

All of the Red Sox family welcomes you to an enjoyable visit to Fenway Park. Exciting baseball is a tradition in the park that is considered one of the most unique in the major leagues.

We are always trying to improve our facilities in order to provide the best possible conditions for our fans to have a pleasant stay here. Hopefully you will not be inconvenienced in any way while our current refurbishing project continues.

Although the Boston entry in the American League is now in its 82nd season, the Red Sox nickname wasn't adopted until 1907. The team was known as the Pilgrims in those days and played their games at the Huntington Ave. grounds where Northeastern U. now stands. Fenway Park opened in 1912 and was reconstructed in 1934 by the late Tom Yawkey during his first year of ownership.

Over 26 million fans have attended games in Fenway Park in the last 15 years and during that span the Red Sox have been the only major league team to have a winning record every single season. In 1981 the Red Sox were an exciting, come-from-behind team under the astute direction of Manager Ralph Houk, and were in the Eastern Division race until the final weekend. In 1967 and 1975 American League championships were won and classic World Series followed against St. Louis and Cincinnati.

The rich tradition of the Red Sox and Fenway Park has been enhanced by the many outstanding players who have performed here—from Cy Young, Babe Ruth, Jimmie Foxx, Ted Williams and Carl Yastrzemski to the present nucleus of Jim Rice, Dwight Evans, Jerry Remy, Dave Stapleton and Carney Lansford.

The playing field is virtually the same today as it was over 40 years ago. The famous "Green Monster" wall, the intriguing angles and corners around the outfield and the closeness of the crowd to the action are reasons why Fenway Park is such a captivating place.

Since 1976 extra enjoyment has been extended to fans through the centerfield message board and its ability to provide statistics, information and replays. The board was constructed after the 1975 season along with a new left field wall. At the same time padding was installed to protect the outfielders.

The diagram on page 57 shows the location of all Fenway Park facilities and the maps on page 60 show the various methods and routes leading here. We thank Red Sox fans throughout New England for their tremendous support.

THE MANAGER

Ralph Houk

Age: 62, Turns 63 Aug. 9; Born: August 9, 1919, Lawrence, Kan. Ht.: 5-11; Wt.: 190 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Pompano Beach, Fla. Married Bette Porter. Children: Donna 11/22/41, Richard 2/28/43, Robert 8/24/49.

The Red Sox surprised most people in 1981 with a 59-49 record, an exciting style of play and their persistent chase for the Eastern Division title. Sparked by the perpetual optimism of new manager Ralph Houk and his clever manipulation of the pitching staff, the Red Sox weren't eliminated until the final weekend. The team's come-from-behind trademark in 1981 resulted in 16 wins in the final at bat and 14 wins after trailing into the seventh inning. Houk finished second in the U.P.I. Manager of the Year Poll for the A.L.

On Oct. 27, 1980 Houk was named the 35th manager of the Red Sox, ending a two-year retirement. Ralph previously managed 16 years in the A.L. with the Yankees and Tigers. In addition to being a winning manager (1366-1298-513) he is also credited with the ability to develop young players. Houk succeeded Casey Stengel as Yankee manager in 1961 and directed N.Y. to three straight pennants and two World Championships (1961-62). Those feats resulted in such honors as Major League Manager of the Year by The Sporting News in 1961 and managing the A.L. All Star team in 1962-63. He spent two years as Yankee Vice-Pres. and Gen. Manager before moving back as manager May 7, 1966 replacing Johnny Keane. He was named A.L. Manager of the Year in 1970.

Ralph left N.Y. after 1973 to become manager of the Tigers for the next five years. He announced his retirement after guiding the young Tigers to an 86-76 record in 1978 and spent the next two years in Pompano Beach. Houk is second in point of service as a manager in the major leagues to Gene Mauch of the Angels.

Houk played in the Yankee organization as a catcher, 1939-54, with four years (1942-45) out for military duty with the Rangers of the 9th Armored Div. in Europe in WW II. He rose from private to major, saw action at Bastogne and The Bulge and was awarded the Silver Star, Purple Heart and Bronze Star.

Now in his sixth year with the Red Sox Walter has built a solid reputation as one of baseball's top young coaches. In addition to his bullpen coaching duties he works on hitting techniques with several of the Sox and has won acclaim for his methods. He's recognized as one of the best batting practice pitchers in the game and is a keen student of overall strategy.

Before joining the Red Sox in 1977 Hriniak put in 16 years as a player, coach and minor league manager. He managed Montreal's rookie team at Lethbridge, Alb., Can. in the Pioneer League in 1976 after starting the year as a coach with Denver. In 1974-75 he was first base coach with the Expos, following two years as manager of their Jamestown team in the NYP League.

ALBERT LEE (LEE, STINGER) STANGE #34

Age: 45; Born: October 27, 1936, Chicago, Ill. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 170 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Fountain Valley, Calif. Married June. Children: Tim 9/3/64, Jim 3/21/67, Jana 5/15/68, Jennifer 9/25/66, Christopher 11/1/67.

The Red Sox had a much-improved pitching staff in 1981 and much of the credit went to Stange. He was selected by Ralph Houk to be pitching coach in Nov. 1981 after a six-year absence from the Red Sox major league staff. He rejoined the Sox in 1980 as a minor league pitching instructor on the Triple A and Double A levels and served as a West Coast scout.

"Stinger" ended a 10-year major league career in 1970 and was the Red Sox minor league pitching coach in 1971 before moving up to the club's major league staff in 1972-74. He held the same position with the Twins in 1975 and then joined the Oakland organization in 1976 as a minor league instructor. He was the A's pitching coach 1977-79 and helped develop the young pitching staff that became one of the A.L.'s best in 1980-81.

Stange had a 62-61 major league record with the Twins, Indians, Red Sox and White Sox. He came to Boston 6/2/66 from the Indians with pitcher Don McMahon for Dick Radatz. He was 8-10 with a 2.77 ERA (best on the team) during the 1967 pennant-winning season and the Sox best reliever in 1968 with 5 wins and 11 saves in 50 games. On 6/29/70 he was sold to the White Sox. "Stinger" was All State in baseball and All Chicago in basketball at Proviso Township H.S. He was also a football quarterback and teammate of former NFL star Ray Nitschke, and went to Drake U. on a football scholarship. On 9/2/64 he tied the M.L. record of 4 strikeouts in one inning for the Indians.

EDWARD FRED JOSEPH (EDDIE) YOST #36

Age: 55; Born: October 13, 1926, Brooklyn, N.Y. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 180 lbs. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Wellesley, Mass. Married Pat Healy. Children: Felita 1/13/62, Michael 11/12/63, Alexis 5/3/65.

Yost is highly-regarded among baseball people for the excellent job he does as third base coach. Quick thinking and thorough knowledge of the opposition's strengths and weaknesses are necessary ingredients for a successful third base coach, and Yost has always demonstrated those attributes. Eddie is in his sixth year at that spot for the Red Sox after doing likewise for the Mets, 1968-76 and Washington Senators, 1963-67. He was with the Mets in the 1969 and 1973 World Series.

"The Walking Man," as he was known during his 17-year major league career, was an outstanding third baseman and leadoff hitter. He came from the campus of New York U. to the Senators in 1944 and went on to set several records for third basemen. He led the A.L. six times in walks, had over 100 walks eight times, scored over 100 runs five times and twice led the league in fielding. He still holds the A.L. record of 28 home runs as leadoff batter.

He was traded from Washington to Detroit in Dec. of 1958 and was selected by the Angels in baseball's first expansion draft, Dec. 14, 1960. When Yost retired after the 1962 season he held the major league record for most games at third base (2,008) and the A.L. marks for putouts (2,356), assists (3,659) and chances (6,015). He was selected for the A.L. All Star team in 1952 but did not play. He has a Master's Degree in Physical Education from N.Y.U. and is a member of their Hall of Fame. On Nov. 1, 1981 he was inducted into the Washington, D.C. Hall of Stars and his portrait was hung in D.C. Stadium.

TOMMY (TOMMY) HARPER #32

Age: 41; Born: October 14, 1940, Oak-Grove, La. Ht.: 5-9; Wt.: 160 lbs. Brown eyes, Black hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Stoughton, Mass. Married Bonnie Jean Williams.

Harper is in his third year as the club's first base coach and base-running instructor. He spent the 1979 season in the Red Sox public relations office before joining the coaching staff. Tommy had a 15-year major league career with Cincinnati, Cleveland, the Seattle Pilots, Milwaukee, the Red Sox, California, Oakland and Baltimore and then was a scout and minor league coach for the Yankees.

He started his career with the Reds at the end of the 1962 season and finished with the Orioles in 1976. In 1810 games Harper hit .257 with 146 home runs and 408 stolen bases. In 1970 he hit 31 home runs and stole 38 bases for Milwaukee, a feat accomplished by Bobby Bonds, Willie Mays, Henry Aaron and Ken Williams. He hit 6 homers that year as leadoff batter, to tie for the A.L. record with Eddie Joost (1948), Eddie Yost (1959) and Bert Campaneris (1970). In 1965 he led the N.L. in runs (126) for the Reds and in 1969 he led the A.L. with 73 stolen bases for the Pilots. He played for the Red Sox in 1972-74 and was the team's MVP in 1973 when he led the A.L. with a club-record 54 SB's, scored 92 runs and hit 17 homers.

Harper starred in three sports at Encinal H.S. and Santa Rosa College and hit .507 at San Francisco State before signing with the Reds. He was the MVP of the Three-I League in 1961 and played 1B-2B-3B-OF in the majors.

JOHN MICHAEL (JOHNNY) PESKY #6

Age: 62, Turns 63 Sept. 27; Born: September 27, 1919, Portland, Ore. Ht.: 5-9; Wt.: 170 lbs. Brown eyes, Brown hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: Swampscott, Mass. Married Ruth Hickey. Children: David 12/19/52.

For almost 40 years Johnny has been associated with the Red Sox in almost every phase of the game, as a player, coach, manager, radio-TV announcer and advertising salesman. He's still one of the most popular members of the Red Sox and makes many off-season appearances on the banquet circuit. The Boston Baseball Writers honored Pesky with their "Good Guy" award at the 1982 Jan. banquet. He was the first base coach for five years and then moved to a dugout role assisting the manager in 1980 while continuing to be the team's hitting instructor.

Johnny was an outstanding shortstop, third baseman and all-around hitter. He holds the Red Sox records for most hits by a rookie (205) and most singles in a season (172) and hit over .300 six times in his major league career. He was the first Red Sox player to have three 200-hit years (Jim Rice is the 2nd). After 10 years with Boston, Detroit and Washington, Pesky coached under Ralph Houk in Denver in 1955 and managed in the Detroit farm system from 1956 through 1960. In the mid-1960's he was a coach for the Pirates and a manager in their system before joining the Red Sox broadcast crew in 1969. He spent six years as part of the radio and television team. He also managed Seattle for the Red Sox in 1961-62 before moving up to the parent Boston team in 1963-64. He's tied for the M.L. record in leading a league in hits 3 straight years.

The Veteran of the Red Sox Infield

By Joe Gordon

Sometime at the end of this decade or the beginning of the next, when the hustle and bustle and everyday grind of playing major-league baseball have come to an end for Jerry Remy, he will have enough time to sit back and reflect.

A season that will jump out of his memory banks, spawning pleasant recollections, will be 1981.

"I'll look back at that year and I think I'll be as proud of myself for what happened as I'll ever be about any season," said the 29-year-old second baseman. "Maybe once in your career you get a chance for the kind of contract I was hoping for, and I was on my option year and had to have knee surgery going into it."

Remy was concerned he might be sounding too commercial, but, of course, he wasn't. His game is "professional" baseball, and when he tore the cartilage in his left knee July 10, 1980, forcing surgery the following month, he faced the prospect of going into his option year on uncertain footing, literally and figuratively.

"The timing was bad," he said. "It was something that stayed on my mind. The frustration of the knee problem going into that season was great. I think I put as much pressure on myself as anyone could have. I had to come back after surgery, after not playing the second half the year before, and on top of that I had to impress a new manager (Ralph Houk, in his first year at the helm of the Sox).

"But I came back and overcame a lot of things. I hit .307, had a good year and I've got a very good contract. From the day of that operation I was like a boxer getting ready for a championship fight. From the first day after the operation to the last day of the season I gave it everything I had."

Remy was rewarded with a contract that covers him for five years plus an option year. He signed it last Dec. 10.

"The injury I had is not really the kind that ends baseball players' careers," said Remy. "I never thought that the injury would end mine, but it could have. That day in Yankee Stadium could have been the last game I ever played in, so now that's my approach to the game. I have to take it one day at a time, giving it the best effort I can each game. You never know when a slide like the one in New York could be the last one. I play every game like it's my last one, trying to be the best player I can be."

He won't be 30 until November, but Remy suddenly finds himself the veteran of the Sox infield. He's meshed beautifully with short-stop Glenn Hoffman as a double play combination, and the good range of first baseman Dave Stapleton has allowed him to move a step or two to his right. He's getting to balls now that might have been through the infield in the past.

And at the plate he's reaping the benefits of his seven years of big-league experience. His batting average in the four-plus seasons he's been in a Boston uniform is some 40 points better than it was during the three seasons he spent with the California Angels, when he was a .255-.260 hitter.

"It has nothing to do with the ball park," said Remy, who grew up in Somerset, Mass. "I'm a better hitter now. Every player in the major leagues has to realize at some point what he has to do to be fairly successful, and I've realized that.

"I've found what is right for me. My first few years with California I was searching for what was right, and when I came to Boston I just realized I had to keep the ball out of the air, and use my assets. I always knew I wasn't going to be a home run hitter, that's obvious with my size (5-9, 165-pounds). I have to hit the ball on the ground and use my speed.

"It's one thing to know that, but another to be able to do it. Walter Hriniak (Red Sox coach) helped me a great deal. Now, once you find out what you have to do to hit the way that's right for you, you have to have enough success with it to believe in it. My first year with the Red Sox I hit .278, which was almost 30 points higher than the year before with California."

Remy remembers playing farm-league baseball in Swansea, Little League, high school and Legion ball in Somerset.

"I played in just about every program I could play in," said Remy. "It was a good area for baseball, we had a nice program. Jim Sullivan coached the high school team, and he was a good coach."

Like most young ball players growing up in Massachusetts, Remy dreamed of playing for the Red Sox someday, but his path to the big leagues took a twisting road to Boston. In fact, there was a time when he thought he had ruined his chances to play pro ball.

"At that time I was trying to decide if I should go to college or right into pro baseball. Different people were telling me different things. A lot of people told me to go get the college education, because then if I didn't make it in baseball I'd always have that to fall back on. The Washington Senators had drafted me.

"I wanted to go to Providence College, but I didn't get in, and I had a friend at St. Leo's College in Florida, so I decided to go there. I figured there'd be a chance to play more baseball down south anyway.

"But almost as soon as I made the decision to go there I realized I had made a mistake," he added. "I still wanted to play pro baseball deep down inside, and I was afraid by not signing with the Senators I had blown my chance. The Angels drafted me (third pick of the secondary phase in Jan., 1971) and I decided to go with them.

"All my development as a player came in the minor leagues," said Remy. "Coming from the East I had played less than half the amount of games everybody else had, it was a matter of geography. I was 18 years old, learning to play with guys much older than me and learning how to handle playing more than 100 games a year instead of the 20 or so I had always played."

Remy went to Class A ball as a shortstop, but was turned into a second baseman immediately, which was another adjustment, but one, he said, that didn't bother him because he was so happy to be playing in the minors. He said he just wanted to survive. He ran into a coach named Ken Myers in the California farm system.

"He took me under his wing," said Remy. "He'd spend hours with me every day. His theory was if you could run he could teach you to play baseball, the way he did with Willie Davis."

The dream of playing in Fenway Park was all but a forgotten childhood fantasy. Remy had met with great success in the California system, using a Midwest League batting crown and MVP choice in 1973 and a strong season in El Paso and Salt Lake City in 1974 to springboard him to the big club in 1975, when he played in 147 games, hit .258 and was named to the all-rookie team. In 1977 he was captain of the Angels.

And then came the trade. Dec. 8, 1977 he was traded to Boston for Don Aase and other considerations.

"At that time, California was more my home than Boston," he said. "I totally enjoyed my seven years in that system. My friends were there, and I had come up through the system with a lot of my teammates.

"When I first heard about the trade I was disappointed, for the reasons I mentioned.

ROUTE ONE, SAUGUS

THE BULLPEN— A FOUR~HEADED MONSTER!

LUIS APONTE

In the early and mid-'60's, there was a "Monster" in the Red Sox bullpen. The "Monster" was Dick Radatz, and he was the most feared pitcher in the game. In 1964 he appeared in 79 games and compiled a 16-9 record with 29 saves and an ERA of 2.29.

Almost 20 years later, there is another monster in the Red Sox bullpen. It is a four-headed beast and it answers to the name of Mark Clear, Luis Aponte, Bob Stanley and Tom Burgmeier. Red Sox manager Ralph Houk created the new monster. Alternating his four bullpen aces, Houk has achieved the effect of a one-man stopper such as "Goose" Gossage or Rollie Fingers, without wearing out any one pitcher.

"What I like to have," says the Red Sox skipper, "is a good middle man and two good end men. Of course, it helps a little more if you can have a left-hander in the group."

Stanley, Clear, Aponte and Burgmeier fit the bill perfectly.

Stanley is the "middle man." The strapping righty, also known as "Bigfoot," usually makes the scene somewhere between the third and seventh innings. He's needed when the Sox starter falters, and his job is to keep the Red Sox in the ballgame until the late innings.

Neither a starting ace, nor a ninth-inning strikeout artist, Stanley was one of the team's most valuable players as the 1982 Sox got off to a hot start. In one stretch of five appearances, he won three games and saved another while pitching 21.2 innings of 15-hit, one-run ball. He struck out 11 and walked only one batter. Of the 65 outs he forced, six were caught in the air, 11 came on strikeouts and the other 48 were ground ball outs.

A typical example of the way Houk uses Stanley came in Texas on May 9. In a scoreless game, Houk brought Stanley in to pitch to Lamar Johnson with two on and two out in the bottom of the fifth. Stanley threw one pitch and retired Johnson on an easy grounder to short. He pitched another 3.1 innings before giving way to Clear in the ninth. Clear struck out both batters he faced and the Red Sox were 1-0 winners.

Clear and Aponte are Houk's "two good end men." Clear has been more of a strikeout pitcher, but both have been effective. With two strong late men, Houk is able to employ the old "odd-even" gas rationing system. Clear is for Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, while Aponte gets the call Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

"You're very fortunate when you have two good end men," says Houk. "I like to keep the bullpen rested and it helps when you can go to more than one guy."

Late-inning specialists have revolutionized baseball in the last 20 years. Houk admits, "I'd rather have a good end man like a Gossage or a Clear than a 20-game winner. The end men win more games for you. The worst thing that can happen is to lose games in the last two innings. Clubs that don't lose ballgames in the last two innings are usually the stronger clubs."

In 1981, Clear led the Red Sox with nine saves and 82 strikeouts in 34 games, covering 77 innings. In the first 35 games of '82, he saved 7, won two and compiled a 1.38 ERA, while striking out 31 batters in 26 innings.

"He's the ideal end man," says Houk. "It doesn't really matter whether he pitches to righties or lefties."

Clear's value is enhanced by the presence of Aponte, a rookie and another late-inning right-hander. "I haven't had Aponte that long," says Houk. "But he seems to be able to get left-handers out, too."

Aponte pitched briefly with the Sox in 1980 and again in '81. Including those appearances, and his fast start this year, the Venezuelan righty gave up only three earned

THE 1982 CELICA LIFTBACK.

THE RIGHT SHAPE FOR RIGHT NOW.

Right now, you need a car that does more than just look good. It needs to have an efficient shape too. Like the new Celica GT Liftback. Now that's the right stuff!

Engineers say it's right. Celica's shape is so aerodynamically slippery it cheats the wind. Celica actually has a lower coefficient of drag — just 0.342 — than the Porsche 928!

And the right shape, plus Celica's high-torque 2.4 liter single overhead cam engine, equals the right performance.

Experts say it's right.

As Motor Trend noted, "Celica's shape is clean and highly contemporary — strong angularity diluted with just a little organic roundness."

Celica GT-S: the right stuff, plus....

Add the optional S package to a Celica Liftback and you've got the stuff dreams are made of! Super-wide 225/60 HR14 steel-belted radial tires on 7-inch wide alloy wheels. Wide fender flares. Rack and pinion steering. And inside, custom-adjustable sports seats, even map pockets on both doors!

DAVE FERRISS

Red Sox pitcher 1945-1950
Wore No. 33

Then: Dave Ferriss was a two-time 20-game winner who played a major role in the Red Sox' 1946 American League championship season.

The 6-foot-2 right-handed pitcher from Shaw, Miss., joined the Boston club early in the 1945 season and startled the baseball world by posting a 21-10 record with a 2.96 ERA as a rookie.

Like the Los Angeles Dodgers' Fernando Valenzuela last year, Ferriss had a sensational beginning, winning his first eight decisions.

The Mississippi State product proved that his first season wasn't a fluke in 1946, when the stars of the game had returned from World War II service, by winning 25 of 31 decisions and playing a major role in the Red Sox winning their first pennant since 1918. He then hurled a shutout in the World Series against the St. Louis Cardinals, who eventually won the series in seven games.

Ferriss began to have shoulder problems in 1947 and never again approached the brilliance of his first two seasons in the major leagues. He was 12-11 in 1947 and 7-3 in 1948 before making only four appearances in 1949 and one in 1950, having no decisions those two years.

For his six years in a Boston uniform, Ferriss had a 65-30 record and a 3.64 earned run average.

Now: Ferriss, who celebrated his 60th birthday last Dec. 5, is director of athletics and baseball coach at Delta State University in his native Mississippi.

1982 was his 20th season at the helm there and it was another highly successful year.

Ferriss' team had a 36-17 record during the regular season and qualified for the sixth year in a row, and seventh in the last eight, for the NCAA Division II post-season competition.

His 1977 Delta State club finished third in the NCAA Division II College World Series at Riverside, Calif., and his 1978 team was second.

In addition, Ferriss serves as the executive director of the University's development program.

"As a result, I haven't much spare time," he said with a laugh.

Quotes: What was your greatest thrill playing for the Red Sox?

"It was being a member of the 1946 pennant winners and playing in the World Series," Ferriss recalled.

"I was fortunate enough to pitch a 4-0 shutout over the Cardinals with a six-hitter. Rudy York hit a three-run homer for us in the first inning off Murry Dickson.

"It was a real thrill playing with Ted Williams, Johnny Pesky, Dom DiMaggio, Tex Hughson and the others in Boston, and playing for Joe Cronin (manager of the Red Sox his first three seasons)."

What was especially frustrating about your career in Boston?

"The three of us (fellow pitchers Hughson and Mickey Harris) going down at the same time," (a reference to the Red Sox pitching staff in 1947 being savaged by injuries that most likely lost a second straight pennant).

Were you a fan of the Red Sox growing up?

"Not particularly. We lived 400 miles from St. Louis and we used to listen to the Cardinals' games on the radio. My father was a big fan of theirs. I remember Dizzy Dean and I was a follower of the Gas House Gang when I was 13 and 14 years old."

How did you become involved with the Red Sox?

"When I graduated from high school the Phillies were interested in me. But my folks wanted me to go to college and I went to Mississippi State University.

"After my sophomore year, Neil Mahoney and George Toporcer of the Red Sox talked to me and arranged for me to pitch for Brattleboro, Vt. of the Northern League."

The Northern League wasn't under the umbrella of professional baseball and collegians didn't lose their eligibility. It is a comparable situation to the Cape Cod League now.

"It was a good league. I played there with Kevin "Chuck" Connors, who later became the Rifleman on TV, and Sam Mele (now a Red Sox scout after playing for Boston and managing the Minnesota Twins).

"After the season ended there, I pitched batting practice for two weeks with the Red Sox. I saw Ted Williams on his way to hitting .406 while I was in Boston. Then I went back to college.

"After my junior year I signed with the Red Sox and was sent to Greensboro of the Piedmont League, where I played for Heinie Manush.

"There was no baseball draft then, but there was an Army draft as World War II had begun.

"I went into the Air Corps and was assigned to Randolph Field in San Antonio, Texas. I played for the team there and I was fortunate as the coach was Bib Falk (a former major leaguer). He helped me a lot.

"I was discharged early in February, 1945 and was all set to pitch that year for Louisville. I pitched well in an exhibition game with Cincinnati and Bill McKechnie (the Reds manager) called Joe Cronin and told him, 'He can help you.'

"The third night of the season we were in Toledo and Nemo Liebold (the manager of Louisville) told me to pack my bag and go to Washington to join the Red Sox. That was in April, 1945. Two days later I was pitching in Shibe Park in Philadelphia."

with jeans, shirts and boots
like you.

What did you do between the time you left the Red Sox and became coach at Delta State?

"I pitched for Birmingham of the Southern Association and Louisville of the American Association. Mike Higgins was the manager both places.

"I did pretty good, but I had lost my power and strength and eventually became a player-coach.

"When Mike was named manager of the Red Sox, I came back as his pitching coach and stayed five years through 1959.

"Higgins was replaced by Billy Jorges midway through 1959, but I was leaving even if the change hadn't been made.

"I had the opportunity to come to Delta State as the AD and baseball coach. And I wanted to settle down at home again."

Have you ever wanted to return to professional baseball?

"Sam Mele wanted me to be his pitching coach (in Minnesota in the early 1960s), but I resisted the temptation to go back. He hired Johnny Sain instead."

Any regrets?

"No, coaching at Delta State has been very rewarding and very enjoyable.

"We've 3,500 students and we've a year-around program, one of the finest anywhere. Along with the spring season, we play 25 games in the fall, too.

"I'm very happy here."

Have any of your players made the big leagues?

"One, Jim Miles, was a relief pitcher for Ted (Williams) in Washington in 1971."

Do you still follow the Red Sox?

"I follow them pretty closely. I've a real feeling for Boston. It was a big part of my life.

"I can't forget a man like Tom Yawkey and I can't forget Joe Cronin. They were all mighty good to a boy a long way from home."

You must have enjoyed Old Timers Day May 1?

"It was great. It was great seeing the people I played with again and it was great being back in Boston. There's nothing like their fans anywhere."

By Jack McCarthy

This is the Golden Anniversary of Yawkey Ownership involvement in the Red Sox and there are three gentlemen of diverse talents who have been with the club every step of the way.

They are: Edward "Amby" Anderson, chief usher, recently honored by the club on his 75th birthday; Tommy McCarthy, genial press steward, and Vince Orlando, home clubhouse attendant, who rules his roost with an iron hand.

Amby, from Roslindale, has dealt with literally millions of fans; Tommy caters to the whims of the hundreds of sportswriters of all persuasions who watch the Sox from Spring training through seasons' end, and Vince is the resident psychiatrist to the athletes.

Among the three of them there is nothing they haven't seen in the way of whacky behavior, moments of high elation, the pits of despair and frustration, quirks of personality—every facet of human nature.

Amby began as an usher at Boston movie houses such as the Trans-Lux, the RKO-Boston and the Orpheum, in the early Thirties. "We would leave the movies at 2 p.m., run out to the ball park and then be back at 4 p.m. In 1930, they only needed six ushers at Fenway Park—we used to pray for conventions so they would have to put on extra ushers. How much pay? $2.98 a game.

"In those days, of course, we worked both ball parks—Braves Field and Fenway. It was a vacation at Braves Field. There were never any people there.

"Biggest thrill over all these years? It was when Babe Ruth grabbed me one day, and said, 'Hey, kid. Get me a couple of hot dogs.' I got them for him, but he never paid me. It didn't matter—that was still my biggest thrill in baseball."

Amby has seen thousands of ballplayers, and says that Ted Williams was the best player, with Carl Yastrzemski second. He adds, "There will never be another Jimmy Piersall, though, and I always liked Stan 'The Man' Musial.

"I got a kick out of Billy Martin. He was a tough guy, but he had more clergy come to visit him before the games than anyone. I remember once when Father Hilary Sullivan from Arch Street Shrine came to visit Casey Stengel, and Billy came in the runway to get his blessing before a game."

All of these veterans revere the late Tom Yawkey, and Amby says, "He was just the best.

By JOE GIULIOTTI

The terms "headed for greatness" or "has a can't miss future" are familiar ones used by the media in describing an athlete who has shown tremendous potential in college or a minor league sport.

But, how many measure up to the advance billing? Many do, but more often there is failure or a few fleeting moments of glory followed by a general decline and, finally, disappearance from the scene.

The true test of greatness is high performance and longevity. Only a select group has achieved it and Red Sox fans have been fortunate to have watched one of the truly greats of the game the past 21 years.

When Carl Michael Yastrzemski was signed out of Notre Dame he was brought to get his first look at Fenway Park. As a 19-year-old he toured the ballpark and observed, "I can hit here."

He's playing against people who weren't born the day he made that statement and still doing what he predicted he would — hit.

At age 42, he's certainly not the player he once was but still commands the utmost respect from rivals. Oh, every once in a while some young pitcher — or for that matter even a veteran — will try to sneak the fastball past the "old man" and has to watch it ripped somewhere.

Yastrzemski is playing ball at an age he should be enjoying his second love — fishing. There are those who feel he'll tarnish his great image by playing past his time, such as Willie Mays and Hank Aaron did.

"When I can't hit any more I'll pick up my bat and glove and go home," is Yastrzemski's response to that. "I know I can't hit as I used to, but I feel I can still hit well enough to play in the major leagues."

During the strike-shortened season of 1981, Yastrzemski missed getting 100 hits for the first time in his professional career. He had 83 but easily would have reached 100 if a full season had been played.

Showing he hadn't slowed all that much, he drove in 16 of 22 runners

YAZ #3000

Not too many remember that Yaz started as a shortstop in the minors.

The 1967 pennant celebration.

from third with less than two out, had seven home runs, each of which either tied a game or put the Red Sox ahead and, during the stretch drive when the Red Sox made their run at the second half East Division title, batted .300 in August and knocked in 17 runs in September.

One of the greatest compliments paid to Yastrzemski last season came from Detroit Tiger manager Sparky Anderson, after his team had lost four straight to the Red Sox in mid-September to all but knock them out of the divisional title.

"If I had someone like Yastrzemski or Tony Perez on my club, I'd win it," he said. "Not so much for what they can do on the field but just having them on the ballclub. But, I don't have anyone like that."

Yes, Yastrzemski has more than survived the test of time. Even before he played his first major league game, he was under a microscope. He was replacing another Red Sox legend named Ted Williams in left field.

He gave indications of what was to come on opening day in 1961 in Fenway Park when he got his first big league hit off Ray Herbert and later threw a runner out at home plate.

From there he went on to become a legend in his own time. His moments of glory and achievements would fill more pages than a novel.

Perhaps his finest hour came on the night of September 12, 1979 when he grounded a single past the glove of New York Yankee second baseman Willie Randolph to become the 15th player in major league history to collect 3,000 hits. It also made him the first in the American League to have 3,000 hits and 400 home runs. The latter figure was achieved two months earlier when he connected off Oakland A's righthander Mike Morgan, also in Fenway Park.

Entering 1982, he had 3,058 games under his belt (the second most in history) and 11,149 at bats (fourth on the all-time list).

A few of his career highlights include Most Valuable Player in 1967; Gold Glove winner in 1963-65-67-68-69-71-77 (in 1977 his fielding percentage was 1.000); American League career record for intentional walks (161); triple crown winner in 1967; three times the American League slugging winner (1965-67-70); league leader in outfield assists seven times (1962-63-64-66-69-71-77); 16 times selected to the American League All-Star team and the MVP of the 1970 game; and co-holder of a major league record with five home runs in two games (May 19-20, 1976, three against the Detroit Tigers and two vs. the New York Yankees, one coming off lefthander Ron Guidry).

1967 was his personal best as far as all around performance when he almost single handedly led the Red Sox to the "Impossible Dream" pennant. He batted .326, hit 44 home runs and knocked in 121. During the final two games of the season against the Minnesota Twins — games the Red Sox could not lose, he was a staggering seven for eight.

Six times he's hit over .300, winning the batting title in 1963-67-68. In 1970 he lost out on the final day to Alex Johnson when both ended with .329 marks, but Johnson won by three percentage points when the average was stretched to five figures.

Yastrzemski has refused to look back at his accomplishments and does not like to dwell on them. "I never look back, always ahead," is one of his favorite sayings.

There's one goal which has eluded him and one he talks about — a World Series championship. Twice he's played in the series and each went to the deciding seventh game before the Red Sox lost. In 1967 it was to the St. Louis Cardinals and 1975 to the Cincinnati Reds, in one of baseball's most memorable World Series.

"That's another reason I decided to come back," he said. "I believe in this team and Ralph Houk. I honestly feel we have a chance and I know I can contribute."

Whether the team wins or whether he has a good year, Yastrzemski long ago stamped himself as one of the all-time greats. He has survived the test. He's defied "Father Time" but he can't hold on against him much longer. When Number Eight finally cleans out his locker, it will be like losing a New England landmark. But when he goes, he most certainly will not be forgotten.

Sept. 30, 1967 Yaz homers in the Red Sox sweep of the Twins to win the pennant.

September 12, 1979 Yaz receives a trophy immediately after his 3,000th hit. That's Yaz with Son Mike and Dad Carl in front, and Buddy LeRoux and Haywood Sullivan in the rear.

Yaz led American League in outfield assists seven times.

You can always spot a Genius by its features.

Look closely at the new SL-5000. It is innovative. Yet understandable. Sophisticated. Yet uncomplicated.

Clearly, this is no ordinary video cassette recorder.

Clearly, this is a product of Genius. The Genius of Betamax.

To start with, you'll notice that the Sony Betamax SL-5000 has advanced front loading. In fact, everything is right on the front. So it's fast, easy and convenient to use, particularly in confined spaces.

And here's another stroke of Genius. The Sony Betamax gives you all the record functions on the left; all the playback functions on the right. That's one more reason the SL-5000—for all its sophistication—is remarkably simple to operate.

Now consider these advantages. The SL-5000 lets you tape one show while you're watching another. And it can be programmed in advance. Which means you're able to record even when you're not at home.

Naturally, it wouldn't be a Sony Betamax without the electronic marvel we call BetaScan. With BetaScan, you can actually see what you're looking for in fast-forward and fast-reverse; then stop when you find it.

There's more. The SL-5000 has Express Tuning to take you directly to the channel you want, skipping the channels in between. It also includes remote control, freeze frame, electronic feather-touch controls.... In fact, almost every important feature you can think of. Plus one you'd probably never dream of: a reasonable price tag.

Of course, to fully appreciate the brilliance of the SL-5000, you have to see it in person. So stop in at your Sony dealer and ask to watch a Genius at play.

To insure brilliant performance every time, always use Sony Beta cassettes.

Baseball Shorthand, as used by the news media to render every game more enjoyable to baseball enthusiasts. All players are numbered and all plays recorded by symbols. For symbols and example of system, see below.

CODE NUMBER OF PLAYERS AS FOLLOWS

Pitcher	1	Second Baseman	4	Left Fielder	7
Catcher	2	Third Baseman	5	Center Fielder	8
First Baseman	3	Shortstop	6	Right Fielder	9

SYMBOLS FOR PLAYS

Single	—	Fielder's Choice	FC	Passed Ball	PB

Triple	===	Wild Pitch	WP	Struck Out	K
Home Run	====	Stolen Base	SB	Base on Balls	BB
Reached base on error	E	Sacrifice	SAC	Force Out	FO

The lower lefthand corner of the scoring block should be considered as home plate. Progress is counter-clockwise with progress to first base indicated in lower righthand corner, to second in upper righthand corner, to third in upper lefthand corner and to home in lower left. In example to left, batter reached first on an error by the second baseman, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball. It is convenient to encircle all runs as shown so that scoring plays may be seen at a glance.

Ken Coleman
and Jon Miller

After two years together, the successful duo of Ken Coleman and Jon Miller will again team-up behind the mike for the WITS Red Sox radio network. This combination of youth and experience offers unique insight into the game of baseball.

Coleman, the executive director of the Jimmy Fund, is a long-time Boston favorite. He has been with the Red Sox on radio and TV for twelve years. Miller, who is only 29 years old, has been on radio since he was in high school. He has spent the last two years of his career with the Red Sox.

In all, Coleman has over 30 years broadcasting experience; 10 years with the Cleveland Indians, 14 years with the Cleveland Browns, 2 years with NBC football, five years of Harvard football, and play-by-play announcer for seven NFL championship games. His other credits include four years as announcer for the Cincinnati Reds on TV, and as the voice of Ohio State football. His broadcasting excellence has won Coleman 12 AFTRA awards.

At San Mateo College (CA.), Miller worked in radio and then went on to work at a TV station in Santa Rosa (CA.). From there he went to the Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League, becoming the youngest play-by-play announcer in the league's history.

Following 1974 with the Oakland A's baseball team, he broadcast games for the San Francisco Dons basketball team and worked for the TV networks of the San Jose Earthquakes and Washington Diplomats of the North American Soccer League.

Miller found his way back into baseball, joining the broadcasting team of the Texas Rangers, and later with Coleman and the Red Sox network.

There's a new team in the TV 38 (WSBK) booth for Red Sox games this year. Veteran Ned Martin now works with newcomer Bob Montgomery in TV 38's eighth straight year with the Red Sox.

Martin, one of the most popular announcers in the New England area, is now in his 22nd year of radio-TV Red Sox play-by-play, and his fourth with TV 38. Ned graduated from Duke University and served in the Marine Corps before starting his career by announcing minor league games. He joined Curt Gowdy on the Red Sox network in 1961 and has been a favorite with the fans ever since. In the fall of 1979 he went to Japan to telecast games between the Major League All Stars and Japanese teams, and from 1976-78 he broadcast the American League Championship Series games on the CBS Radio network.

Montgomery replaced Ken Harrelson at TV 38. He was a catcher in the Red Sox organization from 1962 until he retired in the spring of 1980. Monty came to the major to stay in 1971 and was recognized as one of the best reserve catchers in baseball. In 1973 the Boston Baseball Writers voted him their "Unsung Hero Award," and in 1972 he was named the BoSox Club "Man of the Year." An arm injury in 1979 brought an early retirement to his playing career. The past two years he was associated with WITS Radio doing a sports talk show and some announcing and color commentary of Red Sox games.

In Europe people are practically weaned on great beer. So nobody knows beer like a European. And among all those great bottles of beer, the one Europeans choose most often has only recently become known to you: Kronenbourg. Europeans drink and enjoy more Kronenbourg than any other bottle of beer. More than Heineken. More than Beck's. Perhaps it's Kronenbourg's smooth taste. Or 300 year heritage. But Europe's relationship with Kronenbourg isn't a casual one. Now in America people are discovering they like Heineken. But Kronenbourg ... that's love.

FENWAY'S VETERANS

Fifty years of working for him went by like 10 years. He was the most lovable guy in the world.

"Mr. Yawkey always made your day. He always stopped around the park and talked to everybody.

"After we lost to the Cardinals in the World Series in 1946, I said, 'Sorry, Mr. Yawkey,' and he said, 'Well, Amby, somebody had to lose.'

"These two fellers (Haywood Sullivan and Buddy LeRoux) will turn out to be just as nice as Mr. Yawkey over the years. They're sure off to a good start."

Has Amby enjoyed his long employment at Fenway Park? "Oh, yes. I love people and you sure meet a lot of them in this business. I always stop to listen to a guy."

Like the gentleman of Italian extraction who had paid his way into a double-header with the Yankees to see Joe DiMaggio and came to Anderson after the first game to find out how to buy a ticket to the second so he could see Joltin' Joe again.

Thomas McCarthy, middle man in this triple play, is 66, and began his Fenway chores in 1932, "Picking up bottles in the stands for Harry M. Stevens."

Tommy has gone through generations of Boston newspapermen, and none of them has ever had anything but the best to say about him. He has been watching over them at Fenway, the Garden, the Arena, Northeastern, B.U., B.C., Harvard, Mechanics Building, and assorted other press boxes in the area, including the storied box and room at old Braves Field.

This is not to forget Sarasota, Scottsdale and his present Spring Training location at "Locke-Ober South" in the press room at Winter Haven, Fla.

Tommy was an usher at Fenway Park when his old friend, the late Bill Grimes of the American, had then-Sox public relations man, Eddie Doherty, use Tommy as a bartender at Fenway. Part of his routine was to see the writers off on the train to Sarasota for Spring Training.

In 1946, Doherty took him to Sarasota for his first Spring Training, and since then, Tom has never missed a year, logging 38 in all, with seven at Scottsdale, 14 at Sarasota and 17 at Winter Haven.

Along the way, "I have seen the sun rise in Florida and set in California in the same day," he says, "Baseball has given me more than I could ever learn from any books. I've been all over the country and met all the top people. I've seen Alcatraz and the trolleys in San Francisco. I always remember that Joe Cronin (a San Franciscan), said, 'Never say Frisco. Always San Francisco.'"

When Tommy began at Fenway, a hot dog and coffee came to 20 cents, and "In 1942, I would give out one soft drink and one cigar in the press box per game."

Writers, of course, have been Tommy's concern for a half-century. His all-time favorite was the late John Giloolly, a marvelously gifted and funny writer for the old Record. Tommy worshipped John, if that is the word, and they were the best of friends for years.

AMBY ANDERSON

Also on Tommy's list: the late Uncle Jim O'Leary, Arthur Siegal, Bill Cunningham, and Howard Reynolds, and he has a special memory of the old Braves Field crew of Bill King, Steve O'Leary, Ken Smith, Howell Stevens, Chili Doyle and Charlie Sands—"A happy crew."

Players? Athletes? "Well I always liked to see Clarence DeMar in the Marathon, and I liked Vern Stephens, Johnny Pesky, and Ted Williams, and there was a pitcher from Alabama at Fenway named Big Ed Morris who was a good guy.

"I always liked the Bruins, too—guys like Tiny Thompson, Frankie Brimsek, Eddie Shore, Lionel Hitchman, and Milt Schmidt, Porky Dumart and Bobby Bauer.

"Football? Well, I've had a long friendship with Eddie King (Governor and former B.C. tackle). And one of the nicest men I ever worked for was John Curley, the athletic director at B.C., I was very friendly with Carroll Lowenstein (quarterback) at Harvard."

Back at Fenway, Tommy says, "Words can't express how I felt and feel about Mr. Yawkey. There are no words unless they re-model Webster's Dictionary.

"In 1975 I talked to Mr. Yawkey the day we lost the World Series to Cincinnati, and he said, 'Tommy, it just wasn't meant to be. And we both had tears in our eyes. He was a great, great man. And Mrs. Yawkey is just so nice.'

Tommy takes his losses hard. "When we lose, I really take it to heart. I wish some of these players would." But, he also celebrates in victory. "In 1967, I got excited, I tripped over a cup running down to the locker room and Dr. Tom Tierney had to fix my leg before I could get into the celebration. We danced in the press room that night."

One of Tommy's biggest thrills was being kissed by Julie Nixon when she and David Eisenhower (and eight Secret Service men) came to Fenway. I thought that was so nice—to think they went out of their way to thank me."

Which brings us to Tommy's secret ambition. "I always wanted to be a Secret Service man, but I just didn't have the education. But Mr. Yawkey always would say to me, 'Don't ever forget, Tommy. You're just as good as those people . . .'"

The big man from Chelsea, Vince Orlando, is master of the dressing room. "I began hanging around Fenway Park in 1932, jumping stiles like all kids. My brother John (the late Johnny Orlando) got sick once, and Eddie Collins asked me to come in and help Win Green. When Win became head trainer, I took over the visiting clubhouse, and five years ago, I took over the Sox room."

Orlando was a participant in the daily pepper games with Tom Yawkey. He says, "In the early days we really hit. He never missed a day—the hours depending on where the team was and night games.

"Mr. Yawkey was the greatest human being I ever met—he took care of more people. He worried about people. If ever there was a God on earth, he was it. He never talked about money—never. He was strictly baseball. And he was a smart baseball man. The mechanics of the game—he knew them."

Vince has seen some great ballplayers, on both sides of the field, and managers, too, beginning as far back as Marty McManus. He says, "Joe McCarthy was great. Any ballplayer will tell you he was a great baseball man. Joe Cronin was a hell of a ballplayer—the best all-around shortstop I ever saw. Had a hell of an arm, could go to either side and covered a lot of ground for a big guy."

"Ted Williams was the greatest hitter and the greatest student of hitting who ever lived. More guys should have listened to him on hitting. You know it isn't so hard to hear him when he gets going."

"Yaz has the ability to take advantage of his age—to help him, and he is a hell of a guy in the clubhouse. I never saw him get mad in the clubhouse, but he really takes this game hard."

"Yaz is amazing. You know why he is still playing? Because he knows he can do it. He and Williams worked hard at hitting. Hell, Yaz works hard all the time. Just look at the record."

Orlando was asked about the better players he had seen over the years. "First, my idol was Charlie Gehringer of the Tigers. He could do it all and he never got excited. You never knew he was in the clubhouse. He was so respected by the umpires that if he turned his head on a strike call, the ump would say, 'Sorry Charlie, I missed it.'

"You know, Joe DiMaggio was a great team leader, in the clubhouse and on the bench—a real holler guy, although that was not the impression you would get of him on the field. Hank Greenberg of Detroit worked like Yaz. He would come out and hit on off-days."

"Best pitcher we ever had was Lefty Grove. Oh brother, a hell of a pitcher, and not a bad hitter, either. And boy, was he mean. But he was just overpowering."

"Ellis Kinder sure pitched well for this club, and Mel Parnell became a great pitcher. He could get any left-hander out. Dick Radatz was great in relief. He scared them."

"My Red Sox team would include Cronin and Stephens at shortstop; Jim Tabor (he was something) at third; Bobby Doerr at second; Jimmie Foxx and Rudy York at first. Foxx could really play the position. Rick Ferrell and Birdie Tebbetts would be the catchers. Tebbetts was a fighting sonofagun, and an agitator, too."

"For my money, the best outfielder I ever saw was Dominic DiMaggio. He could play shallow and go back on a ball, and he was a good hitter and a good bunter, too."

Now, Vinnie, do you enjoy this life? "If I didn't, I wouldn't be here. It has kept me going. I think like a young guy. In here, it's always young, coming along all the time. Now, they call me gramps."

There they are, 150 years worth of Fenway Park insight—amazing, each in his own way.

MARK CLEAR

runs in his first 35.2 innings in the major leagues. That's an ERA of 0.76. He was 2-0 with three saves in his first eight appearances this year.

Rounding out Houk's foursome is Burgmeier, a veteran lefthander who can pitch long or short relief. With Stanley doing most of the long work and Clear able to strike out left-handed hitters in the late innings, Burgmeier was the least used of the four early in the year, but in one 12-day stretch in early May he made three appearances of 5.1, 5.2 and 5.1 innings and allowed only one run and one walk with nine strikeouts.

"It's a good situation, having four guys that know how to throw the ball well," says Clear. "You do your job and you know you don't have to pitch every day. For two years now, we've pretty much had the same group. We all realize what we have to do to stay ready. And Ralph is the best I've seen at handling a bullpen."

"He's keeping the bullpen strong," adds Stanley. "We're lucky to have four guys like this. In fact, there's not too many teams in the league that have what we have. This is perfect."

Complete games could become rare if the bullpen keeps up its early season performance. In May in Texas, for instance, Houk lifted one starter who had a 4-2 lead in the fifth, and another who was working on a shutout in the fifth.

"Sometimes we don't have too much to do, because the starters are going good," says Aponte. "But there will come a time when they will have to have one of us just about every day and it will be good because we will be strong."

All four of Houk's monster men are able to get ready quickly. Who gets the call depends on the situation, but Houk says, "I don't use my best men when I'm behind, unless it's the last two innings. It all depends on the situation."

In most situations, Houk has found the right man. "Ralph goes with his hunches and it's paid off well," says Clear.

Thus, for the first time since Mr. Radatz stalked the premises (except for Bill Campbell in 1977), the Red Sox bullpen is a place where games are won and saved, instead of just a place for the home run balls to land.

"Everyone admitted to the bar at my house, always gets Smirnoff. And no one ever raises an objection.

"Some might argue that Smirnoff® vodka costs more. I'll concede that. But consider this... for just a little more than you pay for ordinary vodkas, you can have the great quality of Smirnoff.

But once it sunk in, I realized it was the greatest thing. It was great for my family, and for my wife's family. It was like a dream come true for my parents. Now they could come to the park or listen to the games.

"My wife (Phoebe, also from Massachusetts) felt very much like I did about California. She was friendly with the wives there, and we had our neighbors. But about that time a lot of the guys I had come up with were leaving California, too."

Houk says Remy is approaching some of the greatest bunters he's seen in the game. An early-season flurry of bunt singles put Remy in position to shatter the 15 he had in last year's strike-shortened season.

"But I'm not bunting any more than I have in the past," smiled Remy. "It's just getting a lot more in play than I used to. I bunt when I think it can help the team. Plus, early in the season I wasn't hitting, and you have to get on any way you can."

Official Umpire Signals

Spectator Interference — batter, runner and other runner(s) will be placed at the base(s) which the umpires feel they would have reached with no interference.

Time — ball is dead, play suspended. This sign used when ball is foul, umpire then pointing to foul territory.

Batted Balls Hit Fair or Foul — if fair, umpire points to fair territory — if foul he raises arms overhead (as in "Time" above) and then turns and points to foul territory, and vocally calls "foul."

Awarding of Bases — this shows umpire designating base or bases awarded by overthrow or ground rule double.

TIME

SAFE

Home Run — circular motion of umpire's arm denotes home run.

Safe — both arms parallel to ground indicates runner is safe.

Out — right arm extended out and up indicates runner is out.

Balls and Strikes — umpire makes no arm movement if he judges pitch a ball; if he judges the pitch a strike he uses an exaggerated movement of his right arm.

Worthy of the King of Beers

There's a tradition at Anheuser-Busch. A tradition that says never be satisfied until you've achieved the best.

Now, out of this tradition, comes a light beer worthy of the King of Beers. One with a clean, distinctive taste. Budweiser Light.

It took time. Patience. And a quest for quality that led to the proud list of ingredients and the Beechwood Aging process made famous by the King of Beers.

We know the best never comes easy. That's why there's nothing else like it.

Bring out your best.

1/2 cup butter
1 cup water

CHERYL STAPLETON'S
MEXICAN DESSERT
SOPAIPILLAS
(fried bread puffs)

2 T. water over mixture; mix w/ fork. Round into ball; divide in half. On ungreased baking sheet, pat each half into a strip 12x3". Strips should be about 3 in. apart. In medium saucepan, heat 1/2 cup butter & 1 cup water to rolling boil. Remove from heat and quickly stir in almond extract and 1 cup flour. Stir vigorously over low heat until mixture forms a ball, about 1 minute. Remove from heat. Beat in eggs, all at one time, until smooth. Divide in half; spread each half evenly over strips, covering completely. Bake about 60 minutes or until topping is crisp and brown. Cool. Frost w/confectioners sugar glaze. Sprinkle generously with nuts (I suggest chopped or slivered almonds). Slice horizontally into about 1 inch strips, and enjoy—We love them!

CONFECTIONER'S GLAZE

Mix 1 1/2 cups confectioner's sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, softened, 1 to 1 1/2 teaspoons almond extract or 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla, and 1 to 2 tablespoons warm water until smooth. The recipes do say you can use margarine but I never have. I prefer butter to margarine in most everything Serves 10-12.

2 tablespoons shortening
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2/3 cup lukewarm water

In medium size bowl mix flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening until it is in very small pieces. Gradually add water until dough forms a ball. Place dough on a lightly floured surface. Roll dough until 1/4 inch thick. Cut into 2 inch strips. Then cut strips into 2 inch squares. Place dough into hot oil and fry until golden brown on both sides. Serve with honey, or if you prefer sprinkle with confectioners sugar. Try the honey, it's great. Makes about 2 dozen.

DOROTHY ALLENSON'S

Brown beef with chopped small onion, drain off excess liquid. Add soups (no water), green chilies and enchilada sauce. Bring to a boil then simmer 10 minutes. In a casserole dish layer tortillas, then meat mixture then cheese (usually 3 layers). Bake 20 min. at 350°. May be served with sour cream.

DON'T BUY A MAGNAVISON JUST BECAUSE IT PLAYS MOVIES.

Watch your favorite movie on Magnavision® and you'll hardly recognize it.

Because Magnavision gives you a sharp, astonishingly clear picture—better than any VCR can deliver. And most discs are recorded in brilliant stereo sound as well, so you can hear your movie sound track the way it was meant to be heard...a whole new dimension in video/audio entertainment systems.

But we didn't develop Magnavision just for movies.

Magnavision is a LaserVision player.

And you'll be able to do things with the LaserVision system that are impossible with other systems.

It all starts with a laser beam: the heart of Magnavision.

The laser beam picks up a picture from a special video disc (it's about the same size as a long-playing record, but it's made of tough aluminum plated acrylic).

Nothing touches the disc except a tightly focused beam of light which reads the 0.4 micrometer pit on the disc. So there's nothing to wear out, and you can expect to see the same sharp, clear picture time after time.

Variable speed slow motion, jitter-free freeze-frame on any of the standard disc's 54,000 individual frames, and a "Rapid Search" button let you find just the place you want, when you want it—in seconds.

This advanced technology also gives you room-filling stereo sound (you can play it through your own stereo system—frequency response is 40 to 20,000 HZ  $\pm$  3db).

You can enjoy movies, shows and concerts (wait till you hear Olivia Newton-John's* new video Physical disc in stereo!). And the list grows longer every day.

There are also more and more "interactive" laser discs available—that's where the fun begins.

These are discs that let you participate, using the Magnavision wireless Infrared Remote Control.

You can learn How to Watch Pro Football† (and be quizzed afterwards); or try all the games and puzzles on the Grammy nominated The First National Kidisc†.

You can go on art gallery tours and attend classical, pop or rock concerts.

Don't know how to filet a flounder? Take the Master Cooking Course† from Craig Claiborne and Pierre Franey. Just put your Magnavision into "Slow Motion" and they'll show you exactly how it's done.

You can see it all on Magnavision right now.

Just stop in at your nearest Magnavision Dealer, push the "PLAY" button, and step into the future. To find your nearest dealer, call toll-free 800-447-4700.
